

Statement Of Purpose For MBA In Human Resource

My academic career has consistently taught me to uphold excellence in all I do and maintain focus on my academics in order to hit more ambitious goals. The amazing connection between people and businesses is my true inspiration and what drives me to maintain my academic focus. The fact that the management industry is constantly evolving and growing is pretty fascinating, and this is the main factor that has sparked my interest in continuing my education in this area. Since the start of my educational journey, my ability to work efficiently and handle several duties at once has helped me stay in the spotlight and get closer to my career's most important goals. Being able to focus my academic abilities on coursework in business administration, I realized that I needed to continue my studies in the management program with specialization in human resource and acquire the essential skills and knowledge to have access to more opportunities.

Referring to my academic career, I completed my secondary education from DAV school with a 9.8 CGPA. I continued acquiring new skills and absorbed the greatest academic knowledge possible after that in order to successfully complete my final year of senior secondary school at the same institution with a 73% grade. I chose to pursue a bachelor's degree in business administration at KIIT Bhubaneswar because I am an academically driven student and have a deep interest in business studies. I successfully completed my BBA with a specialization in human resources and received an 82%. I was able to strengthen my leadership and managerial qualities with the aid of this program, as well as problem-solving and time management abilities, as well as tactical and strategic thinking, all of which are essential in today's cutthroat corporate environment.

I had the chance to work as a human resources intern at ONGC after receiving my bachelor's degree. I used to organize and sort the files and assist the administration in reviewing the calls. After that, I was given the chance to serve as the deputy HR head for an NGO in Odisha, where I was responsible for carrying out performance reviews and offering inspirational quotes to boost the HR team's productivity. After completing an internship in the highly specialized and managed department of human resources, I finally realized how important this area of administration was and made the decision to pursue a postgraduate diploma in management from a reputable university. Pursuing a Human Resources internship program gave me a great way to advance my management knowledge and skills while gaining practical experience that bridged the gap between classroom theory and the competencies required for professional career success.

Management continues to be the functional foundation of every firm, and to keep operations in check, it needs a highly skilled and motivated personnel. Due to the fact that employers would always have openings, regardless of the sector I work in, I decided to pursue a career in. I will gain enduring capabilities from a PGDM course, including as customer interaction, product development, leadership and technical skills, business growth and planning abilities, etc., that are and will be required in any business organization today and in the future.

I learned about XYZ University's rich legacy and educational cultures while searching for the greatest institution in the XYZ region. Their commitment to the health of their overseas students and the caliber of their mentors are truly extraordinary. This college not only concentrates on providing the world-class components of the field in which I am interested, but also on preserving the caliber of the connections they develop with academics from other nations. It is one of XYZ's most esteemed PGDM universities.

My professional aspirations are to obtain a PGDM in HR specialization, work as a CHRO, GM (HR), Senior Hr. Manager, HR Manager, or HRBP, and hold a top management position in any organization. I want to obtain direct, one-on-one corporate insights from top-level executives, business owners, and corporate leaders in order to hone my varied management abilities and knowledge and apply them for the advantages of the best firm.
